CHANGES BRING MORE PROFITS

Old Houses Standing Idle for Months Are Losing Money.

Those old houses that stand idle month after month are losing money for some one. The old house in the lower illustration was just such a case. Not only was it a drain on the owner's pocket book, but also an eyesore in the neighborhood.

Old property like this is hard to rent. No one wants to move into a decayed looking dwelling no matter how sound the timbers or well constructed the frame. So the old places go begging or are rented at figures that represent losses rather than profits.

Now Make Profit
But in this case the owner was wise. He recognized his handicap, invested a little money in reconstruction and had a modern up-to-date dwelling as the result—a profit-maker and a credit to his account. The old porch which ran around two sides was torn away when the improvements were started. It was ugly, dilapidated and a dust catcher. Instead, a small stoop was built for the entrance from the street, a single covered shelter protecting the entrance from occasional storms.

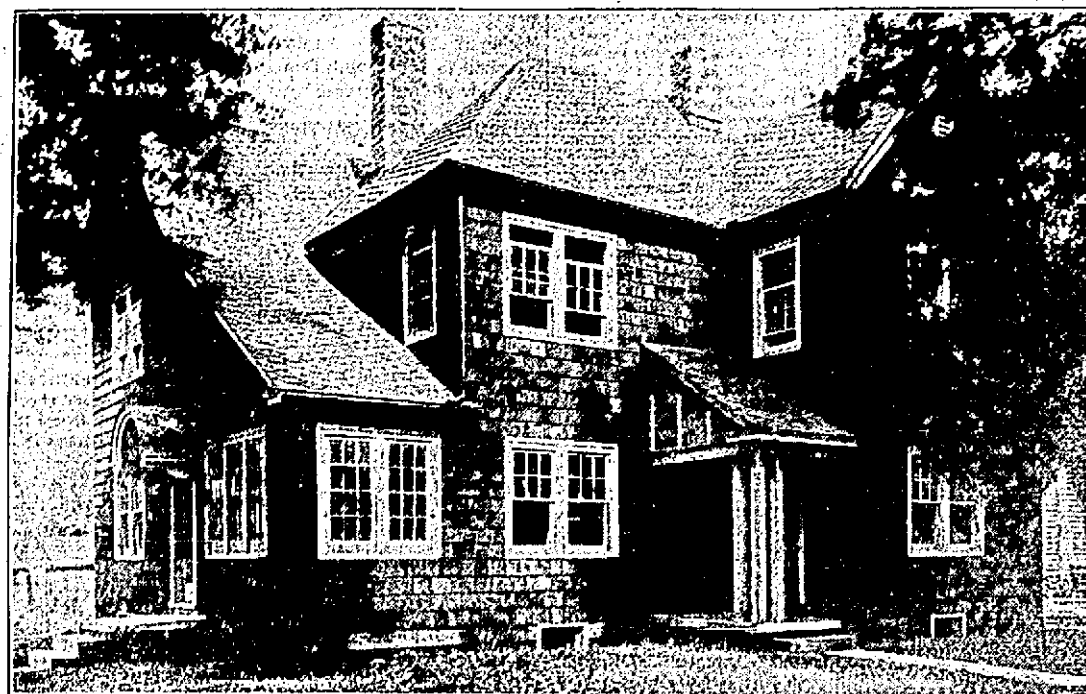

A charming sun room now occupies

FINE SHRUBBERY PRODUCT OF PROSPECT CONCERN

Some of the most beautifully landscaped lawns and yards in Marion county are the products of the Harmon Nursery of Prospect. The Marion county concern offers trees, shrubs and plants in its varied line of products.

OLD HOUSE ON CORNER NOW MODERN HOME

No one wanted to rent this house as it originally appeared. But when it was modernized—1. It's rented now.

the place once devoted to the porch. The roof lines over this section have been changed in the advantage of the structure.

Many of the window openings have been enlarged and a pole of each inserted in these openings. The upper sash of each pair are made with small lights, a style popular at present among builders.

The old tin roof which covered the house was removed and var-colored asbestos shingles used to protect the occupants from storms and fire. Asbestos shingles are meeting with favor among many builders because of their durability, attractive coloring and fire presentative qualities.

The mansard roof effects have been eliminated at each end of the roof by forming gables. Small ventilators with horizontal louvers in these gables thoroughly air the attic.

New Interior Changes
In general the rooms within the structure remain as originally designed. The sun parlor was added, taking the place of one end of the sprawling porch. A friendly fireplace now adds a cheerful note of hospitality to the large living room.

Pleasant manners often pay splendid dividends but graces also hold high and well-paid positions. The world simply must have ability.

Old houses like these are a drain on the pocket book of the owner. They stand neglected and deserted, an expense and loss. After this house was modernized it was again photographed and is shown above.

Selection of Furniture Shows Personal Taste

Housewife Often Can Modernize Her Own Furnishing Through Materials Available at Paint and Varnish Stores; Color of Room Is Important.

Today the modern housewife chooses her furniture with care for she realizes that home furnishings are accepted indications of their owner's standing and good taste.

Furniture is often an accurate gauge of personal character. It speaks clearly and impressively to every caller in the home—leaving an indelible impression of the owner.

The chamber is an intimate room that reflects more accurately than other parts of the house the taste of the owner. It should always be decorated with care and the furnishings should be in keeping.

If it is daughter's chamber, let her select not only the design of the chamber but the colors and decoration as well. If her favorite color is blue, jade-green, antique mulberry or rust, let her bedroom furniture be in any of these colors. Today the furniture is finished to order and the colors of the rainbow are yours to select.

When a decorative motif has been selected for the furniture, the same design may be often carried through the room. The wall paper design, the figures in the cretonne drapes and the rugs may be chosen with the main theme in mind.

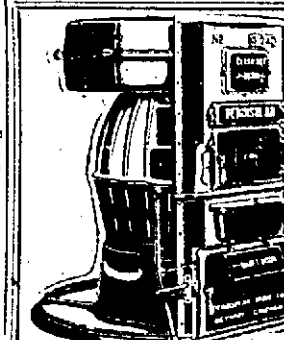

Often the furniture is finished in flat colors and a decorative design such as a spray of apple blossoms is placed by means of decalcomania transfers. Often the housewife can modernize her own furniture. The paint and varnish stores are always glad to give advice as to the application of lacquers and varnish. Many of them carry the transfers in stock.

Realtors To Discuss Ways of Cutting Costs

How to reduce the cost of the comfortable, convenient, and good looking family home so that its price will be within the reach of people of limited incomes will occupy the attention of the nation's realtors at the annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, to be held in Toronto, Canada, July 2, 10 and 11. The extent to which improved technique and mass production can effect this end will be explained by Ernest P. Goodrich of New York City, before the July 11 general convention session in his address on "Reducing Housing Costs by Improved Technique."

BUTTER AND CREAM SLACK

Underconsumption of Both Is Heaviest Load of Ohio Dairyman, Bulletin Says.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., June 2.—The underconsumption of butter and cream still is the heaviest load which Ohio dairyman have to bear, according to a bulletin issued here today by the Ohio Farm Bureau.

There is, the bulletin states, no widespread overproduction in comparison with normal demand. Apparently, the bulletin states, the change to cooler weather has checked the consumption of cream in the form of ice cream and other products.

Ohio farmers, says the bulletin, have greatly increased their own consumption of cream and butter and have reduced their dairy herds, but it seems that their efforts must be increased along these lines before prices rise to a satisfactory level. Sweet Cream Low Sweet cream, says the bulletin, is selling in New York City on a basis of around $15 a can, which is an almost unheard of low price for this time of year.

This low price is in part the result of cooler weather, but it may reflect the decreased buying power of the public. When cream prices are low there is likely to be a tendency on the part of the farmers to be a little careless as to quality. Sweet cream is now held in storage, says the bulletin, and frozen, so that accumulations can readily become a burden on the markets.

Ohio farmers, the bulletin continues, in some sections of the state, who are turning from milk to cream must hold in mind this fact of possibly wide fluctuations in the price of cream.

Storage Holdings Increase Cold storage holdings of butter are increasing rather rapidly in the face of steady receipts, which means that consumption of butter is not maintained as it should be.

It is in the city, states the bulletin, have cooperated to the extent of reducing margins of profits with the result that the consumer is today obtaining full benefit of the low prices which are paid to farmers.

Urges Farmer Consumption
Butter and cream, the bulletin continues, are now so low in price that farmers should do everything possible to increase their own consumption of these products as substitutes for other products which are not produced on the farm.

Low priced eggs and low priced butter should make up a pretty big part of the farmer's food, says the bulletin. It is NOT only a matter of enjoying their high grade food products, but every pound of butter and quart of cream used in the country means that much less of a load for the markets to stand up under.

A recent increase in the price of fat cows on the markets suggests that the unloading process in dairy herds may not have gone to the extent which should have been done in order to reduce the production of dairy products to the point of meeting the decreased consumption.

The bulletin further states that some time may elapse before the public is again taking these profits and products as should be done, so that the selling of process of fat cows should continue without abatement.

Low priced eggs and low priced butter should make up a pretty big part of the farmer's food, says the bulletin.

CHEAP BREAD CHEATS IN MANY WAYS

When you buy cheap bread lacking these essentials you are getting nothing but cheap bread. Can any thinking mother afford cheap bread when a week's supply of Holsum costs but a few cents more than the MONDAY'S astrological forecast holds several adverse planetary aspects, frustrating the best endeavors and subjecting affairs to an influence of deceit, misunderstanding and fraud. However, with these menaces safeguarded against, there is some prospect of financial advantage. Those whose birthday it is are in line to make some financial gains and beneficial associations during the year, providing they are on guard against deception, fraud and misrepresentation or slander. A child born on this day should be ambitious and talented and fairly fortunate and successful.

Lawrence Tibbett, Marilyn Miller, Von Stroheim, Clara Bow and Other Film and Stage Luminaries To Appear in Some of Year's Best Pictures.

BY HALLIE HOUCK

LAWRENCE TIBBETT, hailed as the world's greatest baritone, will sing his way through "The Rogue Song" at the Marion Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, June 2, 3, 10.

Monet Harrison, actor, has turned director to put this show across with a bang. It is based on "Gypsy Love," by Franz Lehar, M. Willner, and Robert Denby, and was written as a screen story by Frances Marion and John Colton. Madam Albertine (Hatch) plays an important part pictorially in the show.

Catherine Dale Owen, blond and beautiful, plays opposite Tibbett. Tibbett is a Metropolitan opera star and recently sang in Cleveland.

This is the first straight production in which Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy have a part and here they are stable boys. Tibbett plays a swash-buckling Gypsy rover who sings in the face of death. The picture is in natural color.

Wednesday and Thursday of this week the Marion is bringing Marilyn Miller back in her musical comedy

Ohio Theater Presents "The Great Gabbo"

JAMES CRUZE, veteran director of many cinema masterpieces, has included the talking picture field with "The Great Gabbo" to be shown at the Ohio theater, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Erich Von Stroheim is starred with Betty Compson as his leading woman.

The story goes that Gabbo, played by Von Stroheim, a foreign-born violinist, Mary, his assistant, and Gabbo's dummy are playing a small New Jersey theater. Gabbo is an egotist, he and Mary quarrel, and she quits. Later both meet

Clara and Gary at The Palace

THE great little baby girl, Clara Bow, comes to the Palace Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in "True to the Navy." We wonder, is how the kind that could be true to the navy with Harry Hichman in the foreground?

Freddie March, remember him with Ruth Chatterton in "Sarah and Son," is Clara's leading man. Clara has been advertised for countless months as the "It" girl. Director Frank Tuttle has described "It" in the following words:

"It is that power which makes old age and infidelity feel young again, which makes youth, itself, feel vibrantly aware that it is young. Therefore, 'It' is youth appeal." Harry Green does the comedy as "Solomon Hineberg." A chuckle comes every time we think of him as "Isadore the Tornado" in "Anastasia on Parade."

Talkies are running wild with their western stories, but let 'em go with as long as they give the public Gary Cooper. He and Fay Wray do the leads in "The Texan" at the Palace, Friday and Saturday.

First he was "The Virginian" and now he's "The Texan." The story is O. Henry's "A Double-Dyed Deceiver." O. Henry is credited with having said very truthfully when he uttered, "You can never trust a man." And to prove this point he wrote the above story. But in proving his point, he created a character so swagging, so gay, so lovable and delightfully boyish and human that millions of people fell in love with him right out of the book. Imagine how they'll fall for Gary Cooper, right on the screen.

Bobby Jones' Victory.

All-American lovers of sport and sportsmanship naturally rejoice over Bobby Jones' victory of Saturday; and it probably is not going too far to say, such is the man, that no one in the sport-loving world but, does him the honor of his achievement.

Four times amateur champion of the United States, thrice the winner and the present holder of the American open championship, twice the winner of the British open championship, he has now added the British amateur championship, which he twice failed to achieve, and thus has attained ten major honors of the golf world.

Bobby Jones' splendid work on the links has time and again been attributed in print to his natural equipment for the game; to the fact that he is physically and temperamentally fitted for it. "He's a born golf player," is the expression often used by the sport writers when speaking of him. But natural equipment would not have carried him to the heights he has attained without the development of the talent with which nature endowed him. It took hard, consistent study and effort and all the benefits which accrue from physical, mental and moral cleanness to make him the player he is today, a player pronounced by some the greatest of all time.

It has been said of Bobby Jones, and he has been quoted as confirming it, that his greatest ambition in recent years was to win the British amateur championship. He has attained his desire, but his case is an exemplification of the saying, "A golfer once a golfer always," and he will compete for the British open once more at Hoylake, June 27.
What an honor were he to win both the British amateur and open championships the same year! Let us hope that he does. He wears his honors so easily, that such a double honor would not hurt him and make him less than the fine sportsman he is.

The Graf Zeppelin.

The Graf Zeppelin is scheduled to sail at 10 o'clock tonight, and by this time tomorrow should be far out over the Atlantic on its homeward voyage to Friedrichshafen by way of Seattle. Having reached its home harbor, it will have completed its second longest voyage and have traveled since first put into the air an aggregate of approximately 100,- 000 miles, which should be accepted as a fair test of its sailing worthiness.

On its arrival at Lakehurst, New Jersey, from Pernambuco, the Graf had covered 12,- 466 miles in 29 1/2 hours, which means an average speed of sixty-five miles an hour—a greater speed than that scheduled for our fastest trains and more than twice that of the swiftest liners afloat.

Dr. Eckener claims that the present trip has demonstrated that the Zeppelin can stand the storms and heat of the tropics as effectively as it has withstood the sub-Arctic blizzards of the North Atlantic, and he expresses the belief that the practicability of a Zeppelin route connecting the United States and South America has been manifested.

It is to be questioned whether the forty-mile wind encountered off the southeastern coast Friday manifested the Zeppelin's ability, to withstand the terrific force of a tropical storm, but even granting that, the practicability of a Zeppelin service between North and South America is to be doubted in the present development of the dirigible. Such a service could be operated only under favorable conditions. The soaking the Graf Zepplin received as a result of a rain at Per-nambuco so lessened its buoyancy, that it had to sail away with 4,000 kilograms less fuel than it was intended to take on and made advisable the cutting out of the scheduled visit to Havana, which resulted in much criticism on the part of the passengers aboard.
It is easy to understand the feelings of the passengers who looked forward to a trip over the West Indies with their varied scenery upon learning that they were headed straight away over the sea for Lakehurst. It is not hard to appreciate the fact that a trip of three days over the sea, broken only by the light signals on Barbados, was a poor substitute for the scenes anticipated.

North Atlantic travel to Europe, of course, has no more charm in a scenic way than the course followed by the Graf Zeppelin which aroused complaint, but there is this difference: there are many avenues for relaxation, amusement and exercise on an ocean liner which are impossible in the cramped quarters of a dirigible, and until the construction of airships is such as to overcome this difference, as well as the difference in cost and the all-the-year-around service advantage of the sea vessels, the liner is bound to hold popular favor over the ship of the air.

The Annapolis authorities have decided that the young lady who will present the flag pany this month is not to kiss him. "Somebody is always taking the joy out of life."

The spectators smoke-lombed by members of the French equivalent of our S. P. C. A.

joyed the experience, but if the bulls selected humor they certainly must have enjoyed the free fight which ensued.

In the light of the victory of Billy Arnold, apolis motor speedway on Memorial day, we just naturally assume that the fellows out after us true aristocrats of the land will now be buying front-drive cars.

The British defense group bars the proposed Channel tunnel and relies on Minister would not be worth the outlay. And it's simply impossible to figure on Mr. Snowden's being willing to give up any money without seeing some way in which it will come back.

Mae Murray has lost her suit against two real estate men with whom she traded a $12,000 equity in a Los Angeles apartment house for a Pasadena apartment they represented was worth $125,000, but which bankers told her, after the trade was made, was not worth over $13,000. Considering the drugs on the market Los Angeles apartment houses are at present, Mae should consider herself lucky to get for her equity what she did.

Connie Ritter, the last of the notorious who was caught down in Mississippi after a life imprisonment as a participant in the murder of Mayor Joe Adams, of West City, Illinois. Punishment may be delayed, but sooner or later the criminal must undergo it.

Senator Caraway says that lobbyists are that they are simply taking advantage of the BACK TO ORDERLY MARKETING?

Address from Washington this week have it that the National Grain Stabilization corporation will withdraw from the market as soon as it has disposed of the holdings of wheat that it has bought up, holdings estimated at 50,000,000 bushels. Mr.
Legge, chairman of the Farm board, is reported to have stated that the wheat crisis has been passed and that from now on the board would merely "stand by." Furthermore, according to one version of the board's plans, the latter will depart, so far as the 1935-36 crop is concerned, from its practice of leading against wheat at fixed prices.
Instead, it is said, loans on the new crop will be on a "floating basis."

If the substance of these reports is correct, then it would appear that the Farm board had taken a definite step in the direction of a return to orderly marketing. Between that fall and the present time it has invaded further and further the field of price fixing, but its first departure from its legitimate function was the establishment of an artificial leading rate for wheat back in November, 1923.
Discussing this move, the Herald Tribune said early this year: "When the board announces its readiness to lend against grain on a basis of $1.15 a bushel at a time when that commodity is quoted at one dollar a bushel, it is doing something more than making itself ridiculous; it is taking a position in the market just as effectively as if it sent into the wheat pit . . . and hid up the price of wheat futures. It is, by direct implication, placing its own 'official' valuation on that particular commodity."

The Federal Farm board can not be expected to perform miracles. Its attempts to do so—inflicting the fantastic expectations of those who believe crop surpluses can be liquidated out of existence—have led it in the recent past far from the compass of activity dictated by sound economic experience. Let us hope that the latest reports are true, and that the Farm board policy from now will steer its course wide of anything approaching price fixing. —New York Herald Tribune, May 30.

A COSTLY EXPERIMENT.

Already five states have held primary elections this year. Seven more states will hold them in June. Other states will hold them later. These preliminaries to the final elections in the fall are costing a lot of money. The Republican primary election in Illinois cost the successful candidate $252,000 of his own money. Senator Grundy put $201,000 into the Pennsylvania primary and lost.
Are the direct primaries worth it?

World's Work recalls that John W. Davis, a former ambassador to Great Britain and candidate for the presidency in 1921 said in an address at Princeton university:
"Difficult as it may be to make accurate comparisons between the present and the past, it can nevertheless be said with some assurance that under the direct primary system the character of candidates has not improved and the power of political bosses has not waned. It is clear that the expense of making or obtaining a nomination has been enormously increased; fraud and corruption have not disappeared, as some recent examples have shown, while party will and party discipline have decreased to the vanishing point. In short, the childlike faith in magical changes wrought by a change of laws, to which the American people are so largely given, has once more failed to be justified by the event."

The states were induced to accept the direct primary system by the claim that it would do many things that so well informed a politician as Mr. Davis now says it has not done.

Primary seems to resemble another (satirical and noble experiment which to date has turned out to be only an expensive failure.—Detroit Free Press,

When Cold Spreads to Larynx.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Our breathing apparatus is a wonderfully made piece of machinery. The larynx is situated below the tonsils, between the back of the mouth and the bronchial tubes.

On the outside of the throat you can see that prominence known as "Adam's apple," which is made up of plates of cartilage or gristle. It lies directly in front of the vocal cords. Back of these plates the vocal cords stretch across the hollow space. All these structures make up the larynx.
The entire breathing apparatus is lined with a delicate tissue or mucous membrane, which extends without interruption down to the base of the bronchial tubes. When this mucous membrane becomes inflamed for any reason, either a light or a very acute attack of laryngitis may follow.

A sudden cold, or in cases of chronic catarrh, infection may be carried into the larynx. It may be a plain, simple inflammation or it may have an infectious character. It may accompany some constitutional disease or appear after a period of strain. Tobacco smoke, or irritating gases, drafts of air, or getting wet may cause laryngitis.
The first symptom of laryngitis is hoarseness. It hurts to talk or to swallow. The throat aches and the victim feels uncomfortable in general. In an acute attack there may be fever, increased heart action, headache and much discomfort.

Sometimes there is a complete loss of voice.
Mucous is coughed up in considerable quantities, and possibly some blood. The coughing is the most prominent symptom. Some persons who use their voices much of the time may be afflicted with laryngitis.

Those who have trained voices seldom have these troubles. Their vocal cords are properly used.
They use the organs so that there is an absence of strain.

One of the reasons why a cold should not be neglected is because of danger of the infection spreading to the larynx or ears. Inflammation begins in the mucous membrane of the nose and may extend down the whole length of the bronchial tubes. This is of common occurrence in persons with a slightly run-down condition.

During an acute attack of laryngitis special attention must be given to the bowels to keep them open. The patient should be kept warm in bed, with the windows open for ventilation. He should be given only the most simple food.

Spraying the throat with a hot boracic acid solution or some good alkaline spray is excellent.
If the throat is not too sore a gargle of hot water will ease the throat.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

C. D. Q.—What causes white spots to appear on the skin?
A—This is usually due to loss of pigment or coloring matter. The cause is unknown and there is no specific cure.

L. L. E. Q.—Are sweet potatoes fattening?
A—Yes.

SUSAN M. Q.—How can one tell if he has sinus trouble?
A—Have a careful examination by a nose and throat specialist.

MRS. BURNS. Q.—What causes one of my small boys' ears to protrude more than the other?
A—This is probably a physical characteristic and may adjust itself when the child is older. If not, you might take the child to a plastic surgeon.
These surgeons are very successful in operations of this kind.

C. W. B. Q.—My son, nine years old, has been vaccinated three times with no results. Is it necessary to be vaccinated again?
A—Probably not.

P. A. T. Q.—I took three boxes of aspirin in a week to cure a toothache. Would this cause me to be nervous?
A—Possibly.

WORRIED. Q.—What is portulaca and what is the treatment. Is it advisable to marry if one has this disturbance? Are women as susceptible as men?
A—Portulaca is a skin disease and is usually very slow and tedious in yielding to treatment.
I've felt particularly send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question. Yes, The disease is just as common in women as it is in men.—Copyright, 1936, Newspaper Feature Ser-

New York Day by Day.

BY G. O. MINTYRE.

New York, June 2—Diary of a modern Peppys: A letter from Billy B. Van, the mistrel, who is living in the New Hampshire pines and happier too than ever before. Also a cable from South Africa from a man I do not recall asking a ticket home. That day my wife bought for us permanent living quarters at 229 Park avenue.

With my mother-in-law to drive to Greenwich, Connecticut, and the Hutchinson river read one of singular beauty. And we stopped under a heavy maple and ate sugar cookies and drank milk from a thermos. So home and met again Pat O'Brien, who wrote that red corpuscle anonymous volume, "Wine, Women and War."

In the evening to a dinner and talked with Robert P. Scripps, the publisher, about this and the other and also to Tom White and Dave Town. And on my way home could kick myself for always introducing people at parties who were either graduated together or knew each other all their lives.

Some one explain this: On my desk was a phone message to call a gentleman at Wicker-ham 5999 about an important matter. He did want to discuss something of importance, but had not communicated with me in any way, knowing about it himself just two minutes before I telephoned. The only other person concerned was in India. And I'm beginning to look under tables and chairs.

Only two New York theaters have rows lettered F, the reason being its similarity to J.
In most theaters, too, Row A has been abolished to make room for an orchestra pit.

In one theater a row in the middle of the house is A.A. This gives ticket speculators a grand chance to bamboozle suckers who get the idea they are going to sit practically right on the stage.

One of the fastest tap dancers on Broadway is actually named Ginger Pepper Rogers, although Pepper is dropped in programs.
Incidentally she is a Texas red head who never had a dancing lesson.

Indeed, the most agile of the feather-footed gild are not "college trained." Illustrous examples—who began as youngsters dancing along the sidewalks—are George White, Jack Donahue, James Barton, Frisco, Will Mahoney and innumerable other headliners.

The man who has elevated more dancers and singers to stardom than any other can not carry a tune or do the simplest step. He is the lavender-shirted and pouty Flo Ziegfeld.

In a tea-room the other afternoon there arrived a stalwart six-footer, a trifle embarrassed among fashionable flappers and oilhalfed cut-throats. He wore a buff two-gallon hat, high-heeled Texas star boots with glittering spurs and a bull-dog tag dangled from his shirt pocket. He accepted tea, but did not taste it. The big room was buzzing with conversation before he entered, but was painfully silent until he left. For some reason a group of gossip-mongering and tea-drinking New Yorkers became suddenly and miserably self-conscious.

A six-year-old boy has been in my workshop for the past hour giving me-man shows for which he extorted a penny. A few moments ago he exclaimed: "Story, typewriting, the hero is dying!" And he ended it all with an imaginary shot from an imaginary revolver. Then he left with a hurt dignity when I giggled out loud, and somehow I feel rather mean about it myself.

Something hotly-totzy in walking sticks with a slightly curved handle of a bright are made of shark skin. Tres chic and tres expensive.

A silver-handled cane engraved with my name turned up in a Third avenue pawnshop to be discovered by Edgar M. Carr, who returns and returns it with his compliments.
The cane was left in a tax sixteen years ago after a dinner at Guffanti's—one of the eighty-cent dinners with vin ordinaire, after which one doesn't care what happens to a cane.

Johannes Kepler.

BY ARCHIBALD MENDERSON.

There is something fascinating about career of Kepler. He was a great astronomer and generalizer. He formulated three and indispensable laws of the motion of the planets in the heavens.
On the other hand, he was a mystic, a superstitious peculiar to the age. The quality which marks him was tireless investigation, endless computation, the perseverance to continue experimenting, often in a hazard sort of way, until he discovered a law which governed the movements of the heavenly bodies.

Born in Weil in Wuertemberg, December 21, 1571; he passed a miserable youth, serving for several years as pot-boy in a father's tavern. After studying for a time in a monastery school, he proceeded, in 1591, to the University of Tuebingen. He braced eagerly the Copernican theory and the age of twenty-three this astronomical enthusiast was elected to a professorship of astronomy at the University of Graz.
Kepler has been termed the "mystic of science." His inductive research, with his emphatic belief in the "harmony of the spheres," illustrating correspondence between plane distances and geometry.

After various abortive attempts to such correspondences, from planes, he received the fantastic idea of utilizing the regular solids—with four, six, eight, ten, and twenty faces, respectively. This ludicrous and absurd idea occurred to him to the five regular solids in the spaces between the six planets.

He started with the Earth's orbit as a sphere, says Harvey Gibson in his "Thousand Years of Science," and placed around it a dodecahedron whose angles he placed him points on an outer sphere which was plane of the orbit of Mars. Then he placed around this sphere a tetrahedron, whose angles gave points on the plane of the orbit of Jupiter. Outside this he placed a cube giving eight points on the plane of the orbit Saturn. Returning to the Earth he placed within the sphere of its orbit an icosahedron which enclosed a sphere giving the plane of the orbit of Venus, and inside that again octahedron which bounded the orbit of Mercury.

It was an extraordinarily complex and ingenious conception, but had no scientific value whatever. There is no scientific relation between the five regular solids and orbits of the planets. A comparison between the reasonably accurate figures of Copernicus and those of Kepler's singular scheme explains why Kepler thought he had made a great discovery.

Copernicus—Jupiter, 635; Mars, 51; Earth, 757; Venus, 724; Mercury, 721.
Kepler—Jupiter, 577; Mars, 533; Earth, 795; Venus, 795; Mercury, 707.

Kepler said, "The intense pleasure I received from this discovery can never be told in words."

This would-be discovery was published a book entitled, "Mysterium Cosmographicum or World Secret," when Kepler was a twenty-five. It created a profound sensation and at a single bound Kepler found himself famous. It is a singular commentary on mysticism and superstition of the age that this book was given a reception far

A lovely home wedding was a lovely Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morral of Harding Highway W. when their daughter Miss Opal Morral of Cleveland became the bride of Donald M. I didn't have such a very good time building forts out of sand for a fella bates to be near so much water as I had going in, but the girls and me and waddle and me and looked like a kiddie on a stick. Then we saw some wildflowers up the bank and started for them and got a lot of sand bars in her bare feet, and we all went home in time for me to go after the cows. The bunch went and smooched some green peaches and Banty was having the stomach ache in our barn. I gave him a drink of milk but that made him worse. Today was Monday, and we played ball all day.

Jubilee's Partner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDITH M. LEWIS

SUNDAY, the first Sunday since vacation started, and there wasn't a cloud when I let Jubilee take up and pulled the bars on his hands and feet with his back up meowing and I could see that the cat was making me get up, nervous and the last bag of Frisco came over and I went to make out like he was sticking his head into the milk pail to get some milk and I just then peanuts had got the pail off and the feed box and he hauled off with "I" and I landed it on the high end of the last bag of Frisco so that I jumped against the door so hard he must have nearly knocked her over and she ran to jump and landed out at him with one foot so that I had to grab her and hold her and I stood out of the room and as soon as he had pushed the last bag of Frisco with the pail I went down and it was the empty horse stall so that the last bag of Frisco didn't know who done it, and he was just going to take a look to see if the skin was broke when we heard Maggie saying something to Yonnie at the barn door, and the last bag of Frisco went up the ladder to the loft like a bird with his pants around his heels. Banty made a grab at them but missed.

When I got home from Sunday school Mr. Wagmore had sent his note over for us to use with his shoes, and my mother made up a lunch and we all went away out on the lake shore and had a picnic, and Yonnie and Maggie and Feeble went along. I didn't have such a very good time building forts out of sand for a fella bates to be near so much water as I had going in, but the girls and me and waddle and me and looked like a kiddie on a stick. Then we saw some wildflowers up the bank and started for them and got a lot of sand bars in her bare feet, and we all went home in time for me to go after the cows. The bunch went and smooched some green peaches and Banty was having the stomach ache in our barn. I gave him a drink of milk but that made him worse. Today was Monday, and we played ball all day.

SHE HAD to fight hard to keep back the tears. What was the matter? He had been devoted itself when they started out. Why was he so different now?

Their romance nearly went on the rocks. But fortunately her new sister-in-law gave her some helpful advice in time. Warned her about "B.O.", the polite name for a condition people dislike even to mention—body odor, a fault that will rob the prettiest girl of her charm. Told her the easy way to keep fresh and dainty even on the hottest, sultriest day.

And once she adopted a simple safeguard against offending, her sweetheart fell in love with her all over again.

MERCHANT NINE WINS EASY BALL GAME

BEATS KIBLER TEAM IN ONESIDED GAME

Richards Hurls Good Ball for Winners; Losers Make 10 Errors.

In the grandstand it was wise sheet. After that it blew up into cracks and laughs. On the diamond, it was hits and runs — and most of them for Marion. The Merchants and their followers had both of them Sunday during the game with the Kibler Clothes of Springfield. When the smoke of the hit and run battle had cleared away the Merchants had chalked up their third straight win by a score of 13 to 7 and the Kibler Clothes had taken their first defeat in four games. How they won their first three is not known. They didn't play like a winning ball club yesterday. Last year the Kibler team walloped the Marion club in their first game of the year. Yesterday they almost had to call the city fire department to get the Merchants put out in the game could go on.

There was nothing to it as far as the locals were concerned. Tracy hurred a fairly good ball game for the losers but his support at times was nothing a good high school team could be proud of. Chances that should have been handled with ease were booted around over the diamond like croquet balls around the front yard.

Kibler Starts Strong
In the opening inning the Kibler team looked like the strong ball club it was cracked up to be. Setting the Marion nine down in one, two, three order, Springfield brought in a single score for its side of the tally.

COLONELS WIN TWIN BIEL WITH COLUMBUS

Shove Aspiring Senators into Third Place; St. Paul in Second.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., June 2.—The Louisville Colonels took a bitter hold on first place in the American Association baseball circuit yesterday and Columbus dropped into third place by virtue of the Colonels' double win, 7 to 0 and 11 to 0. St. Paul went ten innings to defeat Minneapolis 2 to 0 to move into second position.

Indianapolis blanked Toledo in a double header affair by the decisive scores of 10 to 0 and 11 to 0, resulting in tie between the Indians and the Mudhens for fourth place in the standing. Milwaukee won from Kansas City 4 to 3.

Only three games are scheduled today. The Senators and Colonels will play again at Louisville, Toledo and Indianapolis meet again on the latter's home ground, and the Kansas City is at Milwaukee.

ON THE INSIDE

With Bob Kieppatrick

In order that supporters of both the Lee street and First Reformed ball teams do not tick to Garfield park tonight in the expectation of seeing the two teams clash this will serve as a notice that the game is indefinitely postponed according to an agreement made by the teams.

First Reformed Sunday School has an already arranged function which would interfere with the attendance of some of the best players and for this reason the Lee street nine consented to play the game at a later date. There will be three games played today and all are listed elsewhere on this page.

Picking probable winners for today's games resembles the scores marked on most golfers' score cards. They're probably wrong. One of the games should not be as tough to predict as the other two. Forest Lawn should have it all over the Wesley nine. Pradon and Kellogg look like they ought to be able to hurt too many fast balls for the Wesley team. On past performances the Christians take the call over St. Paul, although neither have shown any top notch ball playing thus far this summer. The Presbyterian vs. U. B. game is anyone's game. The Presbyterians have a little better record but either may win. We're not naming the probable victor.

THE miniature golf course which has been constructed in Marion is being over-run by hordes of city golf fans. Over the weekend there were more than 500 persons who tried their skill at putting over the Tuna Tuna course. With its numerous hazards and trick holes it offers a lot of "kick" to the golfer, "club or star." In any way the fans are flocking to play over the course in the best recommendation the layout could have.

COCHET, MOODY WIN IN TENNIS SINGLES

Cochet, beating back the challenge of America's veteran, Big Bill Tilden, yesterday won the French International round court men's singles crown for the third time, 3 to 0, 6 to 3, 6 to 1.

A little later, Mrs. Moody won the women's title for the third successive year by defeating Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Calif., in straight sets with the loss of only three games.

COMPLETES FIRST TRIPLE KILLING
A belated announcement came to this office this morning concerning a triple play which was successfully completed in the fifth inning of the C. D. & M. vs. Steam Shovel baseball game played Thursday.

No mention was made of it in the scorebooks, so it was not credited in the story in Saturday's Star.

The play in question was more the result of poor base running than of fast ball playing although without head-up ball on the part of the Shovel team it could not have been executed according to the informant of the Star.

On a ball thrown in from the outfield by a Shovel fielder whose name cannot be ascertained, Bacon took the ball and tagged out an opposing runner between third and home. He tossed the ball to Bill Roush on third who then touched out the man between second and third. Bill then to Vic Gillis who ran down another runner between first and second. This would have made the daily Hall of Fame had it been reported in the scorebook as it should have been.

Ex-Legion Sluggers Walloped Cardington

The Marion Ex-Legion nine continued their slaughter of Legion Junior league entries, this time walloping the Cardington outfit, 24 to 0 in seven innings. The game was called before the regular nine innings because of the large score.

Legion batters banged out 21 hits for their 24 runs while the Cardington batters connected but twice during the entire game. Johnny Castner showed no hits for the first five innings and Folley gave up two in three frames.

The game does not count in the league standings as the Legion players are all over age for the circuit. Summary and score by innings.

SLUGGING BATSMEN COLLECT 24 HOMERS

Ruth, Wilson Get 16th Each; Red Sox End 14-Game Losing Streak.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR., Associated Press Sports Writer VARIIOUS winning and losing streaks ended in yesterday's ten major league baseball games, but the boys continued to drive balls outside the confines of the parks at an amazing rate.

Twenty-four home runs were hit in the ten games, two less than set in the same number of games May 22. Babe Ruth contributed his 16th homer and Hack Wilson hit two to equal the Babe's total.

The Boston Red Sox ended the season's longest losing streak, turning out the New York Yankees after 14 successive losses to win 7 to 4.

Ruth did not hit his homer until two were out in the ninth inning and by that time the game belonged to Boston.

The Red Sox completed the first triple play of the American league season, Cincinnati already had won the National league its first three-game killing.

Seibold Hit Hard
The Giants put an end to Harry Seibold's great pitching performance of having completed nine straight games as they took a double header from the Boston Braves 9 to 4 and 10 to 3. Seibold started the second game and left in the third inning as the Giants scored 12 runs in one frame. Walter Berger got a homer in each game.

In 1875, an earnest young man began to practice medicine. As a family doctor, he saw the harm in harsh purgatives for constipation and began to search for something harmless to the sensitive bowels.
Out of his experience was born a famous prescription. He wrote it thousands of times. It proved an ideal laxative for old and young. As people saw how marvelously the most sluggish bowels were started and had breath, headaches, feverishness, irritability, poor appetite, and such disorders, were relieved by the prescription, it became necessary to put it up in pill form. Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. It never varies from Dr. Caldwell's original effective and harmless formula. All druggists have it.—Adv.

THE Marry-Go-Round

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Mixed Grill
AFTER the honeymoon lots of brides have to use the hot chest for keeping the months out of their illusions.

A man may get mad enough to fling an imported vase at his wife, but he never gets mad of one who so far lost his head as to rush upstairs and use a guest towel to punish her.

A woman is always asking a man "why" he loves her, but a man tests severely in the unquestioned assurance that a woman loves him because she "just can't help it."

Many a man, who is brave enough to face a machine gun, hasn't the courage to go back and over to a pile of mild socks for the right size, without taking the "little woman" along to keep up his morale.

When a young man catches a gray-haired head on his shoulder it does not signify that he's looking for love, but that he is preparing for a fall.

It is difficult to say which is more annoying to a man, not to be able to kiss a woman whom he is just beginning to love, or not to be able to stop kissing one, whom he has gotten over loving.

Good husbands and wives so often die young; but alas, marriage also is apt to engulf the other kind with immortality.

Keeping their legs a secret is such a brand new kick to some of the younger girls, that they feel positively "dressed" in the long skirt.

A kiss may be technically a kiss, when it is in reality only an imperiousness, an experiment, a duty or a promise.

N. Y. Mother Finds A Real Weight Builder at Last

If you are tired of being bony, scrawny and weak, read how Mrs. Henry A. Thayer of Richmond Hill, N. Y., and her daughter gained weight and improved their figures. The writer of this letter and my daughter, Viola, have been using McCoy's Cold Liver Oil Extract Tablets for seven weeks, and in that time I have gained 4 pounds and my daughter 6 pounds and she is beginning to get wonderful color in her face.

The reason is that McCoy's are genuine cod liver oil extract tablets. That is the same as saying that like the Norwegian cod liver oil from which they are made, McCoy's are hundreds of times richer in flesh and strength producing vitamins than even milk, eggs, butter or cream.

So take advantage of Henny & Cooper's offer of the safe, pleasant, easy, inexpensive way to gain the weight and energy you need. McCoy's must give any man, woman or child the increased weight desired or money refunded. Just ask for McCoy's—60 tablets 60 cents.—Adv.

190 Seniors Hear Baccalaureate Sermon at Epworth

Dr. C. E. Turley Outlines Christ's Six Challenges

Harding High School Graduates Attend Services at Church in Caps and Gowns; Rev. L. A. Wood and Rev. D. E. Miller, Marion Ministers, Aid in Program.

Christ's six challenges to youth were enumerated by Dr. C. E. Turley, pastor of Epworth M. E. church in his baccalaureate sermon to the more than 190 seniors of Harding high school last night at his home church.

Baccalaureate services at Epworth are impressive with the large attendance of young people, the center of the school with its graduating class members in their gray caps and gowns and the overflowing audience of friends and family.

The seniors filed into the church to the music of the processional "Chorus Magnus, Dubois, played by Miss Maye Laugelme, Lawrence, church organist. Preceding the opening of the services at 7:30 p. m., Mrs. Lawrence, gave a 15 minute recital of "Prelude in C Minor," Gullianat "Communion," Foster and "Jesu, My Redeemer," Alford.

Rev. Lawrence A. Wood, pastor of Trinity Baptist church offered the pastoral prayer following the singing of "Jesus Christ, Lord of the Day," and "Prelude in C Minor," Gullianat "Communion," Foster and "Jesu, My Redeemer," Alford.

Dr. Turley's sermon in brief was as given below. The text, "The Master is come and calls for thee," was taken from St. John 11:28.

"Jesus Christ has a challenge for the youth of this day in which we live."

First, to preparation. The secret of real success is setting good and ready. Preparation helps one to get his bearings, gives a definite purpose in life, and opens the door to achievement. Ramsey, MacDonald, prime minister of Britain defines the educated man as "one certain subtle spiritual quality which makes him calm in adversity, happy when alone, just in his dealings, rational and sane in the fullest meaning of that word in the affairs of life." We must remember that spiritual preparation which will enable us to keep pace with the eternal years of God.

Second, he challenges you to high adventure. There are new discoveries to be made, new worlds to learn about; many diseases to conquer, new sources of power to harness. The world-wide life in full of adventure. Christ urges us to seek the truth and think to become free.

Third, he challenges you to cultivate the clean, pure imagination. "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." The imagination creates a new world of reality, which, in our better moments we are striving to attain. Keep the imagination pure and clean.

Fourth, Christ challenges you to lives of courageous daring. Youth faces many problems, not of their own making, but handed down to them from the present older generation. The breakdown in home life, organized crime, lawlessness, war, materialism; aggressive atheism; concentration of wealth in the hands of a few; absolute ownership; unemployment, poverty. All of these are questions that must be faced in the spirit of heroic daring. The great names of history are the ones who answered this challenge. Living to Africa, Morocco to China; Carey to India, Paton to the New Hebrides, Grenfell to Labrador, their names are forever enshrined among the immortals of history.

Fifth, there is that challenge to a creative, transforming faith. Not just blind belief, not just the acceptance of doctrines because they have been handed down to you, not just submitting to everything told you by others. But a vital, personal realistic living faith which appeals to your best reason and inspires and satisfies your own soul.

Sixth, he calls you to consecration. "Give us this heart," "Seek first the kingdom of God." Open the door and I will come and sup with you. Into your weakness will come His strength, into your youth He will come granting you depth of purpose, clearance of vision, power of initiative, stability of character and a firm grasp on things which are eternal.

Urged Tax Distribution In Bank Report

Governor's Committee Sees Need of Change in State System, but Says It's Not Prepared To Make Any Definite Recommendation.

BY MURRAY POWERS
Staff Correspondent for The Star

By Brush-Moore Leased Wire
COLUMBUS, O., June 2 — The banking interests of the state have no intention at the present time of offering any complete system of taxation for the state at large or even at this time, indicating any preference for any proposed system.

This declaration was made today in a preliminary report of the sub-committee on banks to Governor Cooper's committee on taxation. T. J. Davis is chairman of the sub-committee.

The banking group furthermore declares that Ohio banks desire "no more than that the general system shall be so devised that the burden of taxation shall be equally distributed and that banks, in common with all other interests, shall bear their fair share of the whole."

The sub-committee on banks is one of a large number of sub-committees working on taxation plans that will be presented to the state legislature next winter when Ohio's tax system will have to be revamped in compliance with the abolition last November of the present uniform tax plan.

To date proposals for various taxes have been quite numerous and the banking group's statement is particularly interesting from that angle.

Familiar With Situation

Asserting that the banks are interested in taxation of intangibles, the statement of the committee says "that no one knows better than the banks the extent to which citizens of Ohio have transferred their intangible wealth outside the boundaries of the state or have invested it in tax-exempt securities."

"It is no exaggeration to say that if all the intangible wealth which belongs to Ohio citizens were back within its boundaries, there would be no need for any Ohio business to go outside the state for any financial operation," the committee continues.

Stating that it is believed that banks are now contributing at least their fair share of the public revenue, the banking group adds that when compared with the total amount of revenue raised in the state the amount of taxes paid by banks in Ohio is not great.

Going back to 1928 figures the committee shows that the aggregate assessment of capital employed in banking, exclusive of real estate owned by banks, is 6.5 per cent of the aggregate assessment of tangible and intangible personal property.

"Bank real estate, of course," the committee adds, "is no different from any other type of real estate in Ohio and banks must and will continue to pay the same kind and the same amount of taxes on any real estate which they may own as any other taxpayer will do. The sole question at issue, therefore, is the type and character and the amount of taxes which banks shall pay on their personal property.

Not Ready To Recommend

"In view of this situation the sub-committee on banks feels that it would be imprudent for the banking interests to offer any complete system of taxation for the state at large or even to indicate at this stage of the committee's deliberations, any preference among projected and possible systems. On the contrary, it seems to the sub-committee most appropriate to say that the banks desire no more than that the general system shall be so devised that the burden of taxation shall be equally distributed and that banks, in common with all other interests, shall bear their fair share of the whole."

SUMMER SCHOOL TO OPEN HERE JUNE 9

Classes To Be Held for Six-Week Period in Central Junior High Building.

Marion summer school will open Monday morning, June 9 at Central Junior High school. Superintendent George A. Bowman has requested that all pupils desiring to enroll in the school, present themselves for registration at the Junior High school some time Friday.

Classes will be organized where there are 10 or more registrations. The school is held to meet three needs: For those students who failed to make a satisfactory grade in one or more of their regular studies, for those who passed, but on such slight margin that a thorough review and re-teaching will fix the subject in their minds and for those who may wish to speed up their school progress and make additional credits in the summer term of six weeks. Students in the third class must have the permission of the principal of their school before they will be allowed to enroll in the school.

Students are advised to fill out enrollment blanks and leave them with their teachers before Friday at 2 p. m. or to visit Central Junior High school Saturday morning.

School will open at 8:30 a. m. Monday morning and continue only through the morning hours.

Parents may talk with the teachers and principals of the buildings in which their children are enrolled any time Thursday or until 2 p. m. Friday.

Austria's Population Slowly Increasing

VIENNA—The population of Austria is on the increase. The yearly surplus of births as compared to deaths has shrunk to 2,000, according to the latest statistics. And this is more than offset by the emigration of Austrians to foreign lands.

As an indication of the improvement of this country and of the pessimism with which its future is regarded, the Austrian government decided to encourage emigration in order to improve the labor market. Before the war there was practically no emigration at all and the population was steadily increasing.

BUFFET TOP . . . TEMPERATURE-SELECTOR BROOM-HIGH LEGS

The New Westinghouse Refrigerator

COMBINING FOR THE FIRST TIME THREE UNUSUAL REFINEMENTS

AFTER twelve years' experiments, testing part after part in order to obtain the highest degree of efficiency, Westinghouse engineers produced this remarkable refrigerator. It is so compact that it has permitted an unusual combination of improvements—the three unique conveniences desired in modern refrigeration.

Three Exclusive Refinements

The Buffet-Top facilitates food transference — how convenient to rest one dish on top while placing another in the food compartment! The Temperature-Selector regulates the freezing speed so that special dishes may be "hurried up" for dinner, and then the usual preservation temperature resumed. Broom-High Legs (with broad, flat, glider feet) aid cleanliness, make easy the quick removal of dust . . . and eliminate wear on the floor covering.

Here is Genuine Beauty

Not only does the New Westinghouse present all these conveniences, but also—matchless beauty. The symmetrical cabinet—due to the hermetically sealed freezing unit-in-top construction . . . the spotless, icy-white porcelain enamel or lacquer-on-steel finish . . . the decorative satin chromium-plated hardware . . . the efficient, dignified, compact appearance—all signify that the finest in modern refrigeration has been attained! In justice to yourself, examine the new Westinghouse before you buy!

Spirit of Giving

A community campaign for a Community Fund may not have reached the goal set from a monetary standpoint but it is a civic triumph that is on the minds and hearts of the citizens to a point that is far-reaching. So many things were said in behalf of the move and say it will carry on its life in such a campaign but occasionally one with whom one feels sympathy comes along touching the truth then an act of faith.

To James S. Whaley, one of the older employees in the postoffice, the credit for this worthy day's campaign, which found its way to the "bottle" house through Postmaster French, comes due.

"In as much as we have opportunity let us do good to all men?" "All about us are those opportunities and he who has them, great opportunities do come often and only those who are prepared can benefit by them."

"One of these great opportunities is now available to every person in Marion. The Master said while here on earth the poor ye have with you always. It has ever been thus even kind whose lives have been made."

and thus have brought about a new era in the history of Marion. And again the Great Teacher reminds those of us who are strong should bear the infirmities of the weak. As a man of faith in his heart, he said three of us, if there be such who have allowed our selfish thinking to dominate our actions, would do well if we could dig deep down below the surface where only truth lies and there reason these things out with our better self. There will be no question as to our decision. There, with truth as our guide we will no longer look for a better man and cease to criticize those who, being imperfect yet are endeavoring to do the most to forward a worthy cause.

"The merits of the Community Fund can not be questioned under the light of this truth. Asala we owe to the Great Teacher 'bear ye one another's burden' and so fulfill the duty of us who have a job, (our duty) are assured of our job and full time, for we then, in the light of this truth justify ourselves by giving even one day's work."

"One day's work and it is all to meet my share of this great task."

Then shall I withhold my little mite And think they are wrong and I am

HIGH SCHOOL YOUTH MAKES INSTRUMENT

Edgar Hastings, 19, Devises Projectoscope at Cost of $10.

Edgar Hastings, 19, graduating from Harding High school, "Edgar" has made a projectoscope which magnifies objects to 100 times their actual size. The part which is most valuable to him is that he made the machine for $10. He bought some thread and a regular microscope lens. The source of the 25-watt electric bulb inside a silver painted box.

This machine, which is something new along scientific lines, is especially useful in botany and biology work. A pork wren, about the size of the average bird, was placed on the lens of the microscope and focused on the screen of tracing paper which Hastings uses with his machine. The screen is placed about three feet from the lens, between the projectoscope and the person viewing it. Hastings perfected the machine in the second six weeks period of the second semester of school. It is adjusted by turning the plate until a focus is reached. All the time the youth could not do himself, he took to the shop department of the high school.

Troubled For Three Years With Pimples. Healed by Cuticura.

"For about three years I was troubled with pimples on my face and arms. Some of the pimples were soft and others hard. They were red and feasted, and the irritation caused me to scratch. They hurt so badly that I could not keep my hands from my face. Scratching caused sore eruptions which used to last for two or three weeks. Finally I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. I purchased more, and in a week or two I was completely healed." Four railroads have cut their time an hour between Chicago and the Pacific Northwest, to which there can be no objection, but it seems to us that the crying need is for trains which will reduce their time an hour in getting out of Chicago.

The Real Bar to Limitation.

Had there been doubt about the chief purpose of the 2,300 miles of railroad to be constructed by France and for which an appropriation of $371,150,000 has been made, it would have been removed by the speech made by Andre Tardieu at Dijon, Sunday, in which the French premier did a little saber-rattling in manifest response to that of Premier Mussolini in Florence and Milan.

While it is held out that the new lines of railroads are to be for economic as well as strategic purposes, which is undoubtedly true, the fact that the most of the new lines will run north and south along the German frontier and at least one directly toward the Italian frontier goes to show that the foremost consideration of the French in planning them was military.

The lines along the German frontier are to connect the great new system of steel and concrete fortifications which is being built by the French to conform to the lessons taught by the World war at Verdun and Liege. These are to be augmented by feeder lines from central France to make the mobilization of troops along the system easy.

A significant fact is that the most important line to be constructed will run from Avignon, the one-time home of the popes, to Les Arcs, near the Mediterranean seacoast, where the French have a great military airdrome and numerous hangars. This line, which will connect with the Riviera lines, will naturally be more sheltered from air bombardment or coastal attack than the present line to the airdrome leading from Marseilles.

All in all, the new lines will permit more rapid concentration of troops at strategic points than at present, and many of the existing lines will be doubled, that the interruption of one may not block the other.

Here we have illustration of the chief obstacle in the way of limitation of armaments, both sea and land, the chief bar to world peace. It is fear.

For Us of Today and Posterity.

The virgin timber growing on privately owned tracts of land in the Yosemite National park, which was threatened by the wood man's ax, have been saved to posterity, the government having completed negotiations for the purchase of the lands to which it did not acquire title from the patentees or home holders at the time the park was created. As has so often been the case in the saving of natural and architectural treasures to the public, the means and spirit of philanthropy of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., figured largely in the transaction.

Millions of feet of timber had been cut away at the sacrifice of some of the finest trees within the boundaries of the park without congress taking action, but when it became known that the remaining timber was to be cut, sentiment was sufficiently aroused to cause an appeal to be made to congress to save the trees, superb specimens of the pine family.

A bill was finally drawn and offered for the taking-over of all privately-owned lands in our various national parks, and it was enacted into law despite the opposition of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, who owned a summer home in one of the parks.
This bill appropriated a fund of $3,000,000 for the acquisition of the various lands of private ownership in the parks, but it carried the condition that the money could be expended only when the sum expended for the purchase of a tract was matched by private contributions.

This provision was looked upon as a very serious obstacle by those active in the plan to accomplish the transferring of the title of the park lands in question to the government, foremost in activity among whom was Congressman Louis C. Cramton, of Michigan, and Horace M. Albright, director of the national park service, their fear being that the trees might be sacrificed before the necessary funds could be raised by contributions. It was at this stage of the matter that Mr.
Rockefeller came forward with an offer to meet the entire appropriation of $3,000,000 with a contribution of the same size.

The result is that the negotiations have been completed by which all privately-owned lands in Yosemite park pass to the government at an aggregate price of $3,000,000, half of which is borne by Mr. Rockefeller, and negotiations are proceeding for the taking-over of privately-owned lands in the other government parks in the same way.

There was a time when nature's wonder spots did not mean so much to the public, but that time is no more. The low railroad fares from all parts of the land to the park, and the automobile have entirely changed the situation, and any national beauty spot or place of nature's wonders is now accessible to the citizenry of the land generally, and hundreds of thousands of visitors annually will have reason to appreciate what the champions of the preservation of the country's scenic wonders have done for them and the generations to come.

Do We Appreciate Good Music?

Are the American people truly appreciative of good music? Is the patronage accorded high-class musical organizations due to a love for music, or is it a pose?

Such questions came to Jacques Tardieu, former concert master of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and he decided to answer them through a little experimentation. Doubling payment such as the average street player usually wears and taking his $10,000 Stradivarius under his arm, he sought a street corner and began to play. Among his selections were "Meditation" from "Thais," Schubert's "Ave Maria," a number of Krischner's melodies and several others. In his entire offering, there was nothing common place.

Pedestrians approached and stopped to listen. Soon Gordon was encircled by an en-raptured crowd of listeners. His compara-sic than he ever had before.

NATIONAL HEALTH RESEARCH.

President Roosevelt has signed a bill which provides for the establishment of a national institute of health. The nucleus for that agency is the federal public health service, whose quiet but effective work in this country and abroad and whose contributions to medical science the public does not appreciate fully.

The institute of health not only will continue the activities of the public health service, but will develop and expand them. It will have better laboratory facilities and ample funds for experimental work than did its predecessor. The act providing for its establishment allows it to receive contributions and endowments from private sources, as certain other governmental agencies, notably the congressional library, are permitted to do.

The major medical and health organizations of the country approved the legislation and recommend its enactment. They are prepared to cooperate systematically with the national health institute, expecting in return to receive valuable aid from it.

Modest as are its beginnings, competent authorities believe that it will evolve rapidly and become a potent instrumentality and influence for the public welfare. That it never shall be so perverted as to encroach on medical freedom intelligently and beneficially exercised must be the fixed determination of every advocate of scientific progress.—Chicago News.

THEY'RE STILL BUYING.

A Wall Street analyst has been paying tribute to the stability of the great American home market. He says that latest upon what one hears one might arrive at the conclusion that the country was suffering from extreme depression. But a country suffering from extreme depression could not absorb new security issues at the rate of $100-000,000 to $200,000,000 each week, coupon gas-ing at a rate ten per cent. ahead of last year, but more eagerly than a year ago, and increase shareholders lists of big corporations by several hundred thousand names since the November crash.

In spite of the fact that certain industries are operating at lower rates than last year, the country is not in the throes of extreme depression, but neither is it enjoying excess prosperity. Business simply has settled down a little. Roughly, a ten per cent. increase in industrial operations would bring business back to normal. In real depression of the past, industrial operations had to mount twenty per cent. to fifty per cent. sometime to bring things back to normal. The great wealth of the country and the people, easy money and low commodity prices are factors that will accelerate a return to normal.

A country that is accustomed to doing a business of more than $200,000,000,000 a year is not easily stepped in the gloom of any fleeting depression.—

LINDBERGH'S PLEASURE FLIGHT.

The other day Colonel Lindbergh and his wife launched in a "pleasure trip" of several hours.
Leaving the Newark airport, they flew over New York City and Long Island, and after a brief return to the Newark base flew on their way again to the home of Mrs. Lindbergh's parents at Englewood. The whole affair was quite casual, and of course did not attract the attention which attaches to the formal flights of "the lone eagle."

The only reason for mentioning it is that it is the forerunner of what we may look to in the near future. Most of the discussions of aviation now have to do with the commercial side of flying. But it is not unreasonable to believe that the day will come when airplanes will be used by families for afternoon flights quite as naturally as they now go out in their automobiles for a drive. Do not be surprised if your friend should call you up to say, "By the way, I'd like you to fly over and have dinner with us today."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Heredity and Disease.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

There are many persons who do a great deal of worrying over the prospect of inheriting some disease that occurred in the family generations before. Perhaps it is natural to worry over a thing of this sort.

There is no need of being frightened about it.
Every one should understand this.

It is true that one may have a tendency to a certain disease which may have occurred in generations that have gone before. But having a tendency to a disease is quite a different matter from actually having the disease. It is possible to train one's self to good habits of living so that the tendency in question is counteracted.

There are very few diseases in which heredity has any bearing whatever. Certain physical traits run in families, and the habits of one generation may be handed down to the next. You may inherit a prominent nose from your father, or from your grandfather. Your walk may be characteristic of your father.

Just because your mother was narrow-chested and had tuberculosis is no reason why you should have the disease, even though you are narrow-chested. You may have the same anatomy and a tendency to tuberculosis, but you have the power to fix good habits of living so that you build up resistance to that disease.

My keeping your body well nourished, by avoiding all habits that lower resistance of the body, you are pretty safe against all disease. In order to do this you must have good, nutritious food in well-balanced meals. Get out of doors and exercise in the fresh air every day. You need a great deal of sunshine. Breathe deeply. Sleep in well-ventilated rooms.

Have some agreeable occupation. Be happy and do not worry. Have pleasant entertainment and relaxation. Cultivate the right sort of friends.
Keep regular hours and have at least eight hours of sleep every night.

That physical traits are inherited there is no doubt. If one is brought up in a family where bad habits are formed, bad habits of any sort, you probably formed very early in life some of those same bad habits. You should change such habits.
Order your life to the best rules of hygiene and live up to them. You will then be able to build up such a constitution that you can resist any disease.

After all, our lives are very much what we make them. Heredity does not play so large a part in life as many have thought. Taken early enough, if the environment is what it should be, ill health and physical defects can be corrected.

What is to become of the adult is determined largely in infancy and youth. If right habits of living are formed then, there is reasonable expectation for good health throughout life. One's eating habits, respect for morals, control of the emotions, all have a direct bearing on what a man's life is to be.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

G. H. L. Q.—What is the cause of dark colored patches on the body?

A.—This condition is due to more or less poor intestinal elimination. The first thing to do therefore, is to correct constipation.

F. L. M. Q.—What causes palpitation of the heart?

A.—This may be due to indigestion, overeating, nervousness or a possible heart condition.

G. D. H. Q.—Are high heels injurious to one after an operation for appendicitis?

A.—No.

MRS. C. W. B. Q.—What would cause black spots before my eyes when I am reading and what treatment is advisable?

A.—May be due to eye strain, poor circulation or biliousness. Have your eyes examined first of all and be sure that the system is kept clear.—

Science and Religion.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

It is common lament, nowadays, that popular interest in philosophy, theology and religion is steadily on the wane. The great wars of intellect, rapid advances of science, the phenomenal growth of science, so-called, appeals to the masses. The public likes to hear the voice of authority. Science usually speaks in resonant tones and unmistakable terms.
There is something vastly reassuring about certainty.

This point has recently been vigorously combated by A. S. Eddington in his "Science and the Unseen World." This was the Swarthmore lecture for 1929, delivered at Century at Friend's House in London. The century at Friend's House in London. The fundamental thesis advanced by Eddington is that science does not pretend to give an exact and realistic description of nature. The methods of physical examination are necessarily restricted in scope.

Penetrate as deeply as we can by methods of physical examination into the nature of human beings, we reach at best only a sort of symbolic description. Physics, for example, does not pretend to dogmatize as to the nature of man's reality, but realizes that its methods can not penetrate beyond the symbolism of reality.

One sharp line of demarcation is forever drawn between the world of science and the world of religion. There is no ethical principle in science—the moral conduct of a man is not on trial. We are not concerned with the sense of "ought" or moral obligation to the physical domain. What a body does and what a body ought to do, in the physical world, are one and the same thing.

It is clear that there two things are anything but identical in the spiritual world. In the physical world we determine what must happen about a single, typical body or group of such bodies. The laws hold only for bodies or precisely that sort. They may not have individually—marked differences—for, if they do, then the mathematical or physical or chemical law breaks down.

The very essence of the unseen world is that the conception of personality should be dominant. We are not wrong in embodying the significance of the spiritual world to ourselves in the thought of a personal relationship. Our whole approach to it is bound up with those aspects of consciousness wherein personality is centered.

It is quite true that the scientist is dealing with experience, just as is the minister or the philosopher. He is dealing with a bundle of sense impressions, but not with the "responsible, aspiring, yearning, doubting" soul.
"It is far from my thought," says Eddington, "to disparage what we gain by this scientific quest. As truly as the mystic, the scientist is following a light; and it is not a false or an inferior light. Moreover, the answers given by science have singular perfection, prized the more because of the long record of toil and achievement behind them."

Science proceeds on its quest, secure in the purity of the spirit of research. Not all the scientific discoveries will stand the ruthless inspection of time. But "if our so-called facts are changing shadows, they are shadows cast by the light of constant truth."—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.
